Subj: Japanese seaports damaged by quake, tsunami

Dear Shipowner/Operator:

According to today's report for Reuters the following seaports in Japan were damaged by the quake and tsunami that occurred 11 March.

1. Ports with severe damage that could take months, if not years, to rebuild are:

- Hachinohe (medium-sized container and oil seaport)
- Sendai (medium-sized container, breakbulk seaport)
- Onahama (medium-sized container seaport)
- Ishinomaki (medium-sized dry bulk and breakbulk seaport)

2. Ports with less severe damage that could resume normal operations within weeks are:

- Kashima (large-sized container port)
- Hitachinaka (medium-sized container, car seaport)
